

A Band of Brothers – A Gang of Bullies and Thieves Conservative Virginian

Stephen Ambrose published a book in 1992 entitled “A Band of Brothers”, the story of a WWII rifle company called “Easy Company.” He died in 2002. The reason for bringing this up is the headlines I am reading during this October 2013 of the Federal Government Shut Down and Obama’s effort to make certain as much pain as possible is inflicted on We the People.

For me the most important headlines are those about the Park Police closing access to the WWII and Vietnam Memorials on the National Mall , Click HERE, HERE, HERE, HERE, and HERE if you are one of those who has not read about this because you are preoccupied with watching reruns of the Walking Dead.

What must those men who served in the armed forces during WWII and the Vietnam War think? What must be going through the minds of those Veterans as they watch a gang of disrespectful bullies dressed in the olive drab uniform of the National Parks Police put up wired-together barricades to prevent access to the war memorials on the National Mall? These are our military veterans, the men and women who served in the military to protect this nation. They are the men, and women, who risked their lives and health and who watched so many in their bands of brothers and sisters die beside them in the pitch of battle.

What must these veterans of WWII, who have long kept to themselves the horrors they experienced, and these veterans of Vietnam, who have time after time been humiliated by the Liberal American Public and News Media when they returned home, think of the Gang of Bullies who block their way to visiting the memorials that honor them and of the Thieves in the White House and Senate who try one more time to steal the respect these veterans deserve?

What must these Veterans think as they recall sweating in the heat and freezing in the cold as they confronted the enemy on the field of battle? What must they think on a clear October day in 2013 when their memory flashes back to the fog and stench on the field of battle as they moved from building to building in France and Germany during WWII or crept through the jungles of Vietnam knowing that a small error on their part could bring them home in a body bag or leave them in a grave in Normandy?

And what must We the People think? What are We the People willing to let happen? What do we think must be our response to an Ideologue President who is so intent on bringing upon us the destruction of our health care system that he would bring the Nation to its knees and heap ridicule and disparity on We the People? What must we do?

I suggest that We the People daily make so many phone calls to Congress that we permanently crash that phone system and that we heap so many Web-Mail messages into their offices that their computers go into overload and crash. Last night, 100613, Senator Cruz asked the audience of more than a thousand at the Family Foundation Dinner what would be the reaction of Warner and Kaine if 100,000 Virginians were to call or web-mail them that they want each to vote to end Obamacare or to at least defund or delay Obamacare. What do you think? Why not experiment with what might happen by being one of the 100,000 and encouraging your neighbor, friends, and family members to join the ranks of that that particular Band of Brothers, and Sisters?
