

Constitutional Control, Not Gun Control

If there is anyone reading this who is not aware of what happened several days ago in San Bernardino, click HERE, I am at a loss for what to say. Terrorism has reached the threshold that it can happen, ANYWHERE. Meanwhile news reports tell us that Obama thinks terrorism can be controlled by Gun Control, click HERE. In fact Obama is planning the use of Executive Power to impose Gun Control, click HERE. Now before anyone of you say, “What the heck, maybe we should apply the same background checks at gun shows that are applied at gun stores,” consider the following. The next step would be to not allow a private individual to sell a gun to another private individual. An individual would have to sell any gun to a regulated gun store or government agency. In other words – the Government knows who has what and can collect all guns. You would have a choice, give up the gun or die refusing to.

I do not think Obama believes terrorism can be solved by gun control. I think Obama has total sympathy for the Muslim way of life. I think he prefers Sharia to our Constitution. I think his mission is to bring down the U. S. to the lowest level and the mercy of the Middle East radicals. For a long time I could not understand why Democrats could not see or understand what are Obama’s objectives and doings. I have come to the conclusion that they do see and understand. They were raised on the same indoctrination he was. They think no differently than he does. Their standards, morals, and values are the same as his. They are simply copies of him.

I am embarrassed, I am frightened, and I am frustrated that this is what our Nation has come to. I am discouraged and angered that no one in our governments, Federal, State, and Local, will do anything to stop this mad dash to self-destruction. I have heard it said that there is an army of armed millions in this Nation that can take back what has been lost. And I have always said that for that army to be successful it needs a capable General. Without the General an army is no different than the wild masses of the French Revolution. We need a Washington and behind that Washington we need Adams, Franklins, Jeffersons, and Madisons.

The 1776 Revolution was blessed to have Washington, Franklin, Adams, Jefferson, and the rest to come to the forefront and lead. Without those men there would not have been the 1776 Revolution. What crosses my mind is that today it is going to require that you and I find within us the strength to call upon such leaders to come to the forefront. It is going to require that you and I have the wisdom to recognize those willing to lead who are of the type who were our 1776 Forefathers, not French Revolution types. Finally, what we need to embark upon cannot be gradual thing. It has to come as a Terrible Swift Sword. Perhaps we can do this without bloodshed. But undoubtedly it must be firm and absolute: Stop Terrorism, Control our Borders and Immigration, Vote Down the TPP and the like, End Political Correctness, End Social Welfare as Given, etc., etc. Do you know anyone who believes they can do this? Do you think we as individuals can separate ourselves from our individual peculiarities and unite behind someone who can do this? Or are we no different than the Republican Insiders.
