

VIRGINIA'S TRUMP SUPPORTERS – YOUR ATTENTION PLEASE (The Republican “statement of affiliation”– a Toothless Pain)

I'll get to the point and then fill in the details. If you choose to vote in the Virginia Republican Primary on March 1, 2016 you will have to fill out a form in order to vote that includes the “statement of affiliation”: “my signature below indicates that I am a Republican.” While Virginia code (law) states a political party can require a statement of affiliation there is no Virginia Voter Political Party Registration requirement. Bottom line: By signing you are not held accountable to anything. You have no commitment. According to the Republican Party of Virginia (RPV) it is their way of preventing Democrats from voting in a Republican Primary. Actually what the RPV wants are the data (telephone number and email address) you can provide in signing. But you do not have to provide this information, I won't and neither should you.

So sign, vote, and pray Trump wins.

(Note: If there was Political Party Registration in Virginia you would have the option of at least three (3): Democrat, Republican, Independent. As an Independent you would have the choice of voting in one or the other party primaries. The RPV, or at least some of its Leadership, is claiming this year's statement of affiliation is drafted to prevent you from voting in a Republican primary if you are Independent. So there are grounds for a civil rights suit against the RPV's intent and purpose of a statement of affiliation if the purpose is as some of the RPV have claimed.)

NOW – A BIT OF BACKGROUND

The online Merriam-Webster full definition of 'republican' is “one that favors or supports a republican form of government.” The full definition of the word 'Republican' is “a member of a political party advocating republicanism.”

The Virginia Republican Creed reads: “

“That the free enterprise system is the most productive supplier of human needs and economic justice
That all individuals are entitled to equal rights, justice, and opportunities and should assume their responsibilities as citizens in a free society
That fiscal responsibility and budgetary restraints must be exercised at all levels of government
That the Federal Government must preserve individual liberty by observing constitutional limitations
That peace is best preserved through a strong national defense
That faith in God, as recognized by our Founding Fathers, is essential to the moral fibre of the Nation”

My guess is that the content of this creed is what you believe and is why you are voting for Trump. My observation of the Republican Party's elected officials is that they do not adhere to this creed.

Who is a Trump Supporter?

According to the NYT, WaPo, Republican National Committee (RNC), The Weekly Standard, The Huffington Post, some so-called "conservative" Virginia blogs, too-much-of-the-RPV, and a host of Republican Party 'Leaders', Trump Supporters (and that includes me) are either uninformed Rubes or Democrats. I think we know the meaning intended here of 'Democrats', A.K.A. liberal progressives. Merriam Webster online defines 'Rubes' as "an awkward unsophisticated person" or "an uneducated person who is usually from the country."

My response: So I am to admire and bow to those well-educated, city folks – the same ones who are handing us $18+ Trillion debt (click HERE), $3.8 Trillion annual budget (click HERE), 3503 – 4899 regulations per year (click HERE), a bloated Federal Government that ignores the Constitution, a Legislative Branch that has relinquished all of its responsibilities, an out-of-control Executive Branch, and a Judiciary Branch that taken over law-making?

First, the 'Rubes' have reached a saturation point and entirely lack faith in the Federal Government, and perhaps also the State and Local ones. There is a non-violent revolution. But I sincerely fear it could become violent if the Insider Elitists do not listen and govern according to the principles of the 'Rubes'. And that leads to the second aspect: Those in power, the Elite Insiders and those who are the Party, want what they want and they expect the Rubes to go along with them. They will do everything they can to ignore, avoid, and circumvent what it is the Rubes, A.K.A. We the People, expect and want. The Party Insiders have lost all sense of our Republic.

A Convention Verses a Primary

In June of 2015 I wrote an essay for an organization I belong to that was entitled "About that RPV-SCC Quarterly Meeting (Convention vs Primary, secret Ballot, Amicus-Curiae, etc." Here I will talk about the part that relates to 'Convention vs Primary.' If you want to read the essay then click HERE.

The gist of portion on 'Convention vs Primary' was to explain why 14 of the 83 SCC members who were part of the about 50 "Conservative Fellowship" SCC members voted for a Primary instead of a Convention. The reasons included: (1) a survey of normal people-in-the-street (probably 'Rubes') wanted the right to vote in a Virginia state-wide, Republican Primary. (2) Those Rubes felt that a Convention too readily lent to a few Insiders wanting a Convention so they could broker who won. (2) The Rubes did not have the money or wish to take the time to spend 12 or more hours, possibly multiple days, listening to canned speeches and Insiders and Activists argue and manipulate. The Rubes did not think Insiders and activists (~ max of 14,500 people selected by Republican Local Unit Mass Meetings) were entitled to the right to deciding who would win Virginia's choice for the Republican Presidential Nominee for a the Republican National Convention.

The opinion of the 'Rubes' does not seem to have changed. (I have done a man-on-the-street survey of Wal-Mart Rubes, oops Shoppers.) They view the Republican "statement of affiliation" to be signed in order to vote at a Republican Primary to be the same game they feared would take place if a Convention were held instead. The Rubes believe it is their right to openly participate and vote for whom they support and that Conventions and Statements of Affiliation are exclusionary efforts by the Republican Insiders. The Rubes are fed up with the manner in which Government is being conducted and see the current Insider Republican effort to be more of the same.

About Those Democrats Who Would Vote In a Republican Primary

Since the Republican and Democrat Primaries are at the same time the Voter has to make a choice of which Primary in which to participate. I would hazard a guess that hardbound Democrats will be more interested in voting for their Democrat candidate. Lord knows there is enough debate within the Democrat Party as for whether or not Hillary. Any Democrat who decides to vote in Republican Primary is probably one of those Reagan Democrats who believes things in Washington are not very good and they feel, like the Rubes that Trump would actually change things – you know put up a fence on the U.S./Mexican Border, stop the influx of Middle Easterners for which we do not whether not not they are terrorists, hammer the hell out of and defeat ISIS and Al Qaeda, reform the Federal Tax System, Reform the VA, protect the 2nd Amendment, do away with PC, etc. (Gosh – if these are the reasons Rubes back Trump then tell me, what is a 'Rube.')

A Former House of Delegates Member's Ranting and Disingenuous Position

A former member of the Virginia House General Assembly called Trump a "moron." So I guess that makes me and the other Trump supporters 'morons' as well as being 'Rubes.' I tend to believe this former Delegate thinks the 'morons' and 'Rubes' are equivalent in meaning. This former Delegate stated he decided not to run for 2016 because his business was suffering. So here is a man calling a Business Billionaire a Moron – go figure. But what is most astounding about this former Delegate is that for several years he has been preaching a slogan of "engage and include" as a program to bring people from the Middle East, India, Blacks, etc. into the Republican Party. But now he has stated he wants only confirmed Republicans to be able to vote in a Republican Primary. He wants to exclude people who classify themselves as Independents, click HERE, especially those Rubes (Morons?) who would vote for Trump.

For me this man is just another Two-Face, Suspender-Popping Politician who looks in the mirror and admires himself. I cannot believe or think well of such an individual. He is one of the reasons I am for Trump.
